

Innovative Businesses that could shape the future – Part 1

Posted by admin on Nov 12th, 2010 // View Comments

We compiled a list of 10 business that we thought were out of the ordinary. Just not the regular old economy businesses, but something new, something innovative and something that looks “interesting.” There are so many innovative business concepts that we could compile a list of 100. We decided to start with 10. Maybe, at a later time we’ll come up with more innovative businesses. Take a look and give us your comments in the comments section below.

Tag Sell It Inc.

Jonathon Papsin, a young entrepreneur working as a Realtor in Manhattan with a knack for e-commerce, founded Tagsellit.com with his business partner Matthew Dorman, a Technology Consultant for Fortune 500 companies in Manhattan.

He’s been buying and selling secondhand goods online ever since graduating college just a few short years ago. His company, Tag Sell It Inc. is a website where people can present garage sales in a virtual format, enabling users who don’t have a front yard or garage to create a virtual sale.

In 2009 he published “The Ultimate Garage Sale Guide,” and the company has created four iPhone Apps for the company serving the interests of Flea Markets, Tag Sales, Estate Sales and an e-Book.

IndiDenim

IndiDenim offers consumers the opportunity to be the designer to co-create their garment in the exact style they want.

IndiDenim has introduced an alternative to mass produced clothing by enabling customers personalize their style and fit. Customers choose the fabric, wash and pockets and also fill out a fit profile so that each garment is truly customized for each and every customer.

Each one-of-a-kind jean is then made in an artisanal way with personalized details and using premium fabrics and washes.

ShowMyProperty.TV

This TV-style feature will open the door and let potential buyers experience the feel of the property for themselves. ShowMyProperty.TV is tailored to the needs of both buyers and sellers, highlighting all the key features and major selling points.

Gogobeans

Gogobeans launched their cloud-based storage, sharing, and organization service at www.gogobeans.com. At a time when the biggest question surrounding social media is security and user privacy, Gogobeans puts the control of who sees what and when squarely in the hands of their users.

Their innovative method of storing and sharing 'beans' (aka digital files and assets) wrapped in 4 layers of security, makes the Gogobeans service ideal for the consumer as well as the teleworker, the small business and the business traveler. Users can upload large (and small) files.

Sharing involves granting access to the link where the file is stored and not sending attachments which means, for example, the ad agency with the huge graphic files can skip the FTP sites and zipping software. They can simply upload and 'bounce a bean' to intended recipient.

Fast Wrap

Fast Wrap is America's only mobile shrink wrapping franchise. Fast Wrap wraps everything from boats to hotels with shrink wrap to protect it from the weather. They've grown to over 60 franchises in just over two years. Fast Wrap owner, Mike Enos, is a serial entrepreneur who used to own a porta potty company.

Initially inspired by the need to protect his boat for the season, Fast Wrap Owner and President Mike Enos has carved not only a national niche, but a shrink wrap legacy.

Since first developing an innovative method of mobile asset protection, then opening the first Fast Wrap in 2007, Enos and his team have created a thriving national Fast Wrap franchise opportunity, now growing exponentially across the U.S.
